PETER G. GOODMAN

Admitted in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts

Peter Goodman has over thirty years of accomplished legal practice, including significant experience in employment law. After three decades of experience practicing in various well-respected New York City law firms and helping clients solve business and employment problems, Mr. Goodman started his law firm so he could deliver the same high-quality legal services to individuals, start-ups and small to mid-sized businesses, with the benefits of a more nimble and cost-efficient practice.

Mr. Goodman provides clients with zealous representation for all aspects of the employer/employee relationship under federal, state and local employment laws, including counseling and litigating with respect to hiring practices, employment agreements, restrictive covenants, employee handbooks and policies, discipline, terminations, unlawful employment practices such as discrimination and retaliation, independent contractor/employee classification, and wage and hour issues.

Mr. Goodman's approach to disputes is to offer practical solutions to avoid unnecessary fees and drawn out proceedings. However, if litigation is necessary, he is well equipped to vigorously represent his clients. He has extensive experience prosecuting and defending employment and business disputes in state and federal courts, regularly defends charges before administrative agencies and commissions, and engages in alternative dispute resolution such as arbitration and mediation.

Some of the industries for which Mr. Goodman has provided legal services include hospitality, real estate (including cooperatives and condominiums), construction, financial, professional (including legal and accounting), staffing, consulting, manufacturing, web-based, alternative energy, educational, hair salons, non-profit, public relations, and dental.
